Unique and multiple artworks that speculate on the obliteration and denial of the contents of a book – text or images (from Isgrò to Broodthaers) – not only fail to reflect the habits of a typical, friendly reader but descend from a current of well-defined artistic experimentation and require a specific treatment. The same applies to works that ask for the physical destruction of the volume (such as A book, a performance by Ulises Carrón) or material demediation of the paper device (eg: A passage Buzz Spectre).

Notes, underlining, marginalia

[1] The project starts from the mundane need to find a Swedish translation of the book A Room of One's Own (1929) by Virginia Woolf, a pamphlet reflecting on the role of women in literature. Dahlberg makes use of the Swedish library system to gather as many as possible of the original book copies, scanning pages with notes and reassembling them into a printed version of a thousand copies, collecting multiple personal perspectives and reading experiences. The tension between the public and private life of the reader is emphasized by the integration of the original title with a reference to the print run and the exhibition in which the book was presented.

[2] Networked Optimization speculates on the popular highlights that Kindle users can share and view on their e-ink screens; the output is a series consisting of three versions of self-help books purchased on Amazon and adapted again to the paper format, only making visible the most popular passages that are highlighted by readers and effectively removing the other text.

Opere in copia unica o multipli che ruotano attorno all'obliterazione e alla negazione dei contenuti – che sia testo o immagini (da Isgrò a Broodthaers) – solo non rispecchiano le abitudini di un lettore disposto, ma rientrano in un filone di opere artistiche ben definito e hanno bisogno di una lettura specifica. Lo stesso vale per opere che esplorano la distruzione fisica del volume (come la performance A book di Ulises Carrón) o demediano il supporto (es: A passage, Buzz Spectre).

Note, sottolineature, marginale

[1] Il progetto nasce dalla banale esigenza di trovare una copia in lingua svedese del libro del 1929 di Virginia Woolf, pamphlet che racconta la vita della donna in letteratura. Kajsa Dahlberg è una bibliotecaria svedese che ha deciso di creare un numero possibile di copie del libro originale, momento successivo scansiona le pagine e le ricomponete in un'unica versione stampata che raccoglie molteplici prospettive per un lettore. La tensione tra la vita pubblica del lettore e la vita privata del lettore è sottolineata dall'integrazione di un riferimento alla tiratura (A thousand copies) e dal progetto espositivo con cui è stato presentato.

[2] Networked Optimization sfrutta le funzionalità dei lettori elettronici (popularity highlights) che gli utenti di Kindle sono in grado di condividere e visualizzare sui loro schermi.

[15] Maciunas, George (1976), Flux paper events, Berlin: Edition Hundertmark

The tension between public and private, as in the work of Dahlberg, is central in this work, but in this case the context of a networked reading environment makes us reconsider the apparent privacy of reading from digital devices (especially if we think of the article "As New Services Track Habits, the E-Books Are Reading You" by

A bit of my past as a designer: after a vocational degree and working a few years in Helsinki, I journeyed to London. The vocational degree I took was a highly technical one that taught me the use of tools and craft in design. However, I was left without the tools of thinking—I still lacked the capacity to analyse, and to process design in a more holistic sense. After moving to London, I found myself being a student, a teacher, and a practicing designer—all at the same time. These roles feed into my work one way or another. As a creative in the 21st century, you have to be able to wear multiple hats.

Central Saint Martins⁴²

Not everything was smooth sailing—I nearly failed my second year at Central Saint Martins. It got me thinking how could it be that I still don't fully understand what I am doing. These failures made something click—I realised that there isn't a correct way of doing things. I collected myself to produce a nice body of work for my final year. For this final year presentation, it was part of the requirement for us to present process books

G.D.A.A (Graphic Designer as Architect) was established in 2015. Born from Graphic Design's admiration towards Architect & Architecture's role of possessing socio-cultural status, historical significance and creating "works of art".

G.D.A.A aims to achieve equal or greater status for the Graphic Design discipline. This is attained by creating works incorporating architectural methodologies into graphic design practice—by following a site-specific manifesto.

Foreword

When Francis Upritchard took centre stage in that great historical conduit of all things Oriental, Venice, during the 53rd Venice Biennale in 2009, the curator Heather Galbraith observed that Upritchard "creates a place where histories and archives can be viewed anew, through playfully exploring aspects of partiality, misreading, dodgy translations and uncanny coincidences." As she approaches the new context of a museum in Kagawa, Japan, dedicated to the work of the painter Genichiro Inokuma, Upritchard, whose practice draws simultaneously on multiple "others" in the formation of its own geographically and temporally complex constellations, hopes to co-opt Inokuma's works into her own exhibition—staging her own Japanese-inspired objects and images in dialogue with the western inspired works of her dead Japanese "host."

My interest in the images that prompted this text—images (Fig. 1-4 [pp. 47, 67]) made to mark the debut performance of William Butler Yeats' Noh-inspired play At the Hawk's Well—began in part, with my own attempts in 2010 to co-opt Japanese Noh theatre as a reflexive tool in the investigation of the history of the development of the double identity of a sculpture—Henry Moore's Atom Piece/Nuclear Energy (1963-65)—a process that included (a largely unsuccessful) attempt to recreate a salon staging of At the Hawk's Well with my students from the Städelschule, Frankfurt, but that culminated in the presentation of Project for a Masquerade (Hiroshima) at the Hiroshima City Museum of Contemporary Art. This interest in Yeats' play was recently reawakened by

After several teens suffered seizures while playing Nintendo video games, the company began including warning labels on much of its software. The notice told users that the games' graphics and animation could cause a shigeki, a strong stimulation resulting in unconsciousness or seizures.

A "Consumer Information and Precautions Booklet" that comes with the Game Boy product states in part, "WARNING: A very small portion of the population have a condition which may cause them to experience epileptic seizures or have momentary loss of consciousness when viewing certain kinds of flashing lights or patterns that are commonly present in our daily environment.... If you or your child experience any of the following symptoms: dizziness, altered vision, eye or muscle twitching, involuntary movements, loss of awareness, disorientation, or convulsions, DISCONTINUE USE IMMEDIATELY and consult your physician."

In the Pokémon case, though, there appeared to be few leads to go on. Although the bright flashes seemed to be the likely culprit, the flashes had been used hundreds of times before without incident. The technique, called paka-paka, uses different-colored lights flashing alternately to create tension. It is common in anime, the distinctive Japanese animation technique used in Pokémon (and many other cartoons, such as Voltron, Sailor Moon, and Speed Racer).

There was apparently very little difference between episode 38 and the other Pokémon episodes. The best guess was that the sheer number of flashes or length of the segment (reported as five to eight seconds, depending on the source) made the difference. Producer Takemoto Mori had used virtually identical paka-paka in most of the previous episodes, with slight variations in color and background combinations. "During editing, that particular portion didn't call my attention or bother me," he said. All Pokémon episodes were pre-screened before airing, and no problems were reported.

Toshio Yamauchi, an epilepsy expert at Saitama University of Medicine outside Tokyo, suggested that the symptoms could be a one-time attack triggered by

CODECS HAVE BECOME UTTERLY EMBEDDED IN DAILY LIFE, AND OUR ABILITY TO DISTINGUISH BETWEEN HD AND LD-RES IS UNDENIABLY APPARENT. BUT DESPITE THIS OBVIOUS QUALITY RECOGNITION WE STILL ENDURE AND TOLERATE PHENOMENALLY POOR FIDELITY IN MUSIC AND VIDEO. MEDIA ISN'T MADE FOR THE SILVER SCREEN OR CUT TO 1600SM VINYL ANYMORE, IT'S OUTPUTTED FOR MAXIMUM EFFICIENCY ON IPHONES VIA YOUTUBE.

OUR PHYSICAL WORLD IS HELD IN A CONSTANT FEEDBACK LOOP IN WHICH IT IS COLLAPSED, PROCESSED, DIGITISED AND RE-SOLIDIFIED DURING WHICH TIME INFORMATION IS LOST AND REPLACED RESULTING IN BOTH OBVIOUS AND HIDDEN COMPRESSIONS. THIS PROJECT HAS BEEN PUT FORWARD IN A RIB TO RECREATE SOME OF THESE ROUTINE ACTIONS, NOT NECESSARILY TO POINT OUT, BUT RATHER SURFACE FEATURES THAT ARE OTHERWISE INVISIBLE.

THE GODZILLA FILMS WERE QUICKLY AND SOMEWHAT ARBITRARILY INTRODUCED INTO THE PROJECT AS INTERESTING SOURCE MATERIAL, HOWEVER WE SOON FOUND RELATIONSHIPS AND TANGENTS BUILDING UP AROUND IT. THESE TANGENTS ACTUALISED THEMSELVES AS A DIGITAL VS. ANALOGUE DISCOURSE THAT FORMED THE CORE OF THE WORK, AND MORE RECENTLY THIS CONVERSATION HAS NATURALLY SPREAD INTO THE SOUND, PACKAGING, APPEARANCE AND WRITINGS.

THE VIDEO ITSELF HAS BEEN OBVIOUSLY EFFECTED TO BUILD UP A DREAM LIKE MONTAGE IN WHICH BALLS OF ATOMIC FIRE ENGULF THE MICROSCOPIC SETS, CREATING A MINOR APOCALYPSE. THE LAUGHABLY CLUMSY MONSTERS HAVE BEEN PURPOSELY CUT, LEAVING BEHIND ONLY THEIR SEMI-DIGITISED CELLULOSE WAKE, IN WHICH LASERS ZAP BUILDINGS AND IGNITE RAINBOW FIRE. THE REPEATING SCENES ARE ECHO LIKE, A TEMPORAL COMPRESSION AND EXPANSION IN WHICH INFORMATION IS CONTINUALLY LOST AND REDISCOVERED, ALSO IN REFERENCE TO TOHO STUDIOS RECYCLING FOOTAGE. THE SPEED OF THE PIECE HAS BEEN ALTERED SO IT SEAMLESSLY SHIFTS BETWEEN HYPER AND SLOW-MO, THIS IS IN A WAY A METAPHOR FOR THE TIMELESSNESS OF THE INTERNET, THE MUSIC HAS BEEN BUILT OUT OF SAMPLES DRAWN ONLY FROM GODZILLA SOUNDTRACKS. THE SOUND HAS THEN

IN WESTERN CIVILISATION, ESPECIALLY IN AMERICA, GODZILLA IS PORTRAYED AS PART OF JAPANESE POP CULTURE. KALAT (2007) STATES WESTERN CRITICS AND AUDIENCES WATCHES GODZILLA LIGHTLY. DO WE SEE GODZILLA ONLY AS AN ENORMOUS MONSTER THAT DESTROYS CITIES AND FIGHTS OTHER KAIJU? KALAT'S OBSERVATION CONTINUES, 'BEYOND THAT SURFACE APPEAL, THOUGH, LIES A COMPLEX AND SUBTLE, POLITICAL MESSAGE.'

GODZILLA WAS INVENTED BY THE AFTERMATH OF THE ATOMIC BOMB IN 1945, IN WHICH THIS STORY IS EXPLAINED IN THE FIRST EVER GODZILLA (1954). DAVID KALAT (2007) EXPLAINS, 'IN A JAPANESE CONTEXT, THE MONSTER IS LESS A REACTION TO THE BOMB THAN A SYMBOL OF THE BOMB'.

—THE JAPANESE CITIZENS SHEER TERROR AND HORROR TOWARDS WAR AND BOMBS; THE DESTRUCTION AND DAMAGE IT CAUSED; THE RESET OF JAPAN—IS TRANSLATED THROUGH GODZILLA.

KAIRAKUTEI BLACK'S (2002) REASON OF ATTRACTION TO THE GODZILLA FILMS IS 'THE CATHARTIC MOMENT WHEN THE MONSTER TOTALLY DESTROYS A FAMOUS CITY'. THE ARCHITECTURE AND ITS RELATION TO THE NOW OBVIOUS RUBBER BODY SUIT IN GODZILLA FILMS CREATES A PECULIAR WORLD, A FAMILIAR YET BIZARRE LANDSCAPES WITH TREES, MOUNTAINS AND BUILDINGS JUXTAPOSED TO THE SIZE OF THE KAIJU. THESE SCENERY BECOMES AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT TO THE ATTRACTION OF KAIJU FILMS—WHEN GODZILLA STOMPS AND BURNS THE BUILDINGS, AS KAIRAKUTEI BLACK STATED, A CATHARTIC MOMENT.

GODZILLA IS FEAR ITSELF AT THE SAME TIME THE RELEASE OF IT.
